About the Webinar:

To build a strong and healthy society it is essential to inculcate the equality, inclusivity and diversity among girls and boys. Even in this 21st century including rural and urban family's boys are encouraged and girls are ignored in all aspects. Boys and girls start developing their gendered identities from their birth itself. The upbringing at home also influences them. The gender discrimination starts homes. We still have a society where women and girls fear for their safety and well-being, and are considered 'burden' on their families. Sexual offences include sexual gestures, stalking, ogling, voyeurism, molestation and rape are seen the society. We may have been able to bring women to the forefront, but without addressing and challenging gender norms at a nascent stage of social development, we cannot hope to work towards a society where women and girls feel safe and valued. We need to inculcate moral and ethical values in our society about respect to women. The aim of this webinar is to sensitize people especially younger generation, to be alert to the prevailing situations and circumstances with regards to their safety. Law enforcing agencies may be doing their job, but not to our expectation. Politicians have their own interests and agendas. Our Indian culture is one of a male dominated society that looks upon women as subordinates, and that is the reason why we have remained backward in this area.
